enspicuous figure in the senate lobby investigation and now under indict-ment in New York for impersonating nembers of congress, was arrested here tonight by order of Attorney General McReynolds. He was released on $3,000 bond.

An Extradition Contest.

What promises to be a long drawn out extradition contest will begin September 17, the date set for Lamar's appearance before the United States commissioner here. The warrant on which the warrant was made was issued by the federal court in New York and had been brought here beore only to be carried back, the authorities to get their hands upon Lamar in New York state and avoid the necessity of extradition proceedings and delay of probably a year or more,

Lamar Not Surprised. In the meantime Lamar has been in Washington stopping at a downtown hotel and appearing at the capitol almost daily to attend sessions of the senate lobby committee. Lately he had vainly tried to get the investigaters to hear him expose what he said was a great railroad lobby maintained in Washington,

R. O. Sampson, a New York special agent of the department of justice, came here this afternoon with the warrant, and accompanied by several district officers, arrested Lamar as he was entering his hotel. The prisoner did not seem surprised and within a few minutes had summoned by telephone his lawyer and a bonds-

Extradition Process Slow.

This is said to be the first attempt on record to punish impersonation of a member of congress although there have been various instances of such impersonations and bills have been introduced to make the act unlawful. The process of extraditing from the District of Columbia is extraordinarily slow. When arraigned before the commissioner, Lamar will demand proof of a prima facte case against him, and the government then will present the record of the New York in-dictment. If extradition is ordered, then the prisoner may bring the matter before the supreme court of the district by suing out a writ of habeas corpus.

Boston, Sept. il.—After a day spent in discussing the question of what constituted a reasonable charge for depreciation in the equipment of a railroad, as applicable to the petition of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for the approval of a $7,000,000 bond issue, the Massachusetts public service commission an-nounced today that the examinations of the accounts of the road would be onducted in private.
